Lyotha bint Sultan al Mughairi, Sultanate's Ambassador to the Federal Republic of Germany said that the exhibition aims to expand the umbrella of values of tolerance, understanding and coexistence among peoples around the world through coordination with international organisations and religious centres concerned with disseminating moderate values and calling for peace and coexistence among peoples, cultures and religions.

The exhibition continues in the Natural History Museum in Nuremberg till the end of April 2019. The exhibition contains a rich programme of lectures, seminars and specialised workshops. Experts and scientists from various historic and religious disciplines take part in the exhibition. The exhibition highlights the Sultanate's identity and civilisation via centuries. -ONA
